

Every pixel traces back to a measurement on the broadcast

Four streams are measured from the footage, combined in one metric scene, and the result is checked against the frame it was built from.

