

Image-level synthesis: every stream is measured from the clip

Four quantities are measured from the broadcast, composed in one metric scene, and the render is checked against the frame it came from.

